As every citizen has a chance to hold a single citizenship scrutiny card legally, illegal citizenship scrutiny cards must be cancelled: Vice-Senior General

State Administration Council Vice-Chairman Deputy Prime Minister Vice-Senior General Soe Win addresses the meeting to compile voter list for the election, in Nay Pyi Taw on 1 April 2022.

ID record books issued by the Immigration and Population Department to the whole nation are being transformed into the computerization process, said Vice-Chairman of the State Administration Council Deputy Prime Minister Vice-Senior General Soe Win at the meeting to compile voter list for the election at the SAC Chairman Office yesterday afternoon.

In his address, the Vice-Senior

General said: As a basic factor, the data and statistics must be accurate to hold a free and fair in 2023, and election commissions at different levels and immigration and population departments need to join hands in scrutinizing all houses whether everybody and every household have citizenship scrutiny card and household registration Form-66/6. ID record books issued by the Immigration and Population Department to the whole nation are being transformed into the computerization process. Upon completing such a process, immigration Form 66/6 will be inserted into the computer. After that, he noted that combined teams in townships will scrutinize whether the data on the ground will be checked before 2023 when the election is earmarked.

The Vice-Senior General

stressed that as every citizen has a chance to hold a single citizenship scrutiny card legally, illegal citizenship scrutiny cards must be cancelled. Likewise, he stressed the need to scrutinize Form-66/6 for ensuring clean, free and fair voting.

The Vice-Senior General underscored that the Ministry of Immigration and Population's statistics mentioned that it had issued IDs to more than 51 million people, including dead persons, those who went abroad for good, lost IDs, damaged IDs, and those holding two or three IDs. So far, the relevant ministry has enlisted more than 27 million ID holders under computerization, and there remain more than 24 million people. The remaining data must be inserted into the computer in time.

Moeyungyi Lake conserves ecosystem with local bird inhabitants, migratory birds

THE government conserves the birds and wild animals, biosphere reserves and ecosystem. The ecosystem of Moeyungyi Sanctuary in the Bago Region is currently conserved with the residential bird inhabitants and migratory birds when the water level becomes lower starting the end of March.

The water declines to over two feet in March. Some migratory birds, such as Asian Openbill, Black-winged stilt, Red-wattled Lapwing, Snipes, and others still stay in groups.

They will return to the North Pole in the second week of May.

"We conduct patrols with the department officials to curb the illegal activities in Moeyungyi Sanctuary.

Strong demand drives tamarind price up in Mandalay market

MANDALAY market sees brisk buying of tamarind on the back of strong demand by foreign and domestic markets, resulting in the price rise as well.

Last year, during the pre-Thingyan Festival, the price of seeded tamarinds was K1,000 per viss (a viss equals 1.6 kilograms), while the seedless ones fetched K2,200 per viss. This year, the seeded tamarind is worth K1,800 per viss, and the prices of seedless ones stand at K3,600 per viss, said the Soe Win Myint depot owner in Mandalay.

"This year, tamarind businesses are thriving. The yield is also expected to drop. The competitive buying between the domestic dealers and the foreign trade partners hikes the price up. Furthermore, the price is likely to remain higher due to the low inventory," he elaborated.

Tamarinds are yearly sent to China, India and Bangladesh. The central Myanmar region (Kyaukpadaung, Popa, Pakokku, Myaing, Yamethin, Zeepingyi and Pinlebu towns) is the primary producer of tamarinds. They are abundantly supplied to the market during Myanmar Thingyan New Year Festival.

Myanmar shipped US$9.6 million worth of 20,662 metric tons in the 2021-2022 Financial Year, which was an increase of 9,796 tonnes (estimated value of $5.6 million) compared to the 2020-2021FY.

Tamarind trees are primarily found in the central Myanmar regions – Mandalay, Sagaing and Magway. They can be harvested only once a year in summer. Myanmar's foreign trade tops $15.5 bln nearly past six months

MYANMAR'S external trade in the six-month mini-budget period (October 2021-March 2022) sank to US$15.5 billion, which indicated a slight decrease of $20.48 million as against the year-ago period, the Ministry of Commerce's data showed.

According to data released by the ministry, international trade stood at over $15.52 billion in the corresponding period of the last FY2020-2021.

Between 1 October 2021 and 25 March 2022, Myanmar's export was worth over $7.88 billion, whereas the country's import was relatively low at $7.62 billion.

The border trade dropped owing to the closure of border posts by China, the leading trade partner amid the coronavirus impact, with a sharp drop of $2.43 billion against the year-ago period. However, the maritime trade registered a significant increase of US$2.4 billion during this mini-budget period.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, animal products, minerals, forest products, and finished industrial goods, while it imports capital goods, raw industrial materials, and consumer goods.

The country's export sector relies more on the agricultural and manufacturing sectors. The Ministry of Commerce focuses on reducing the trade deficit, export promotion, import substitution and market diversification. According to the Commerce Ministry's statistics, the external trade stood at $29.58 billion in the 2020-2021FY. — KK/GNLM

MIC nods to 48 foreign projects in mini-budget period

MYANMAR Investment Commission gave the green light to 48 foreign projects from China, China (Taipei), Hong Kong SAR, India, Singapore, the Republic of Korea, Seychelles, Nepal and France between October 2021 and March 2022 of the mini-budget period. The Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA) indicated that capital of US$684.686 million was brought into the country, including the expansion of money by existing enterprises.

Those enterprises are to execute in agriculture, livestock and fishery, manufacturing, power, energy, hotel and tourism, and other service sectors. The Ministry of Investment and Foreign Economic Relations has invited responsible businesses to benefit the country.

The Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) ensures that responsible businesses approve by assessing environmental and social impacts. The commission is working together with the relevant departments to screen the projects.

Meanwhile, the domestic investments made by Myanmar citizens in the country stood at K468.39 billion in the mini-budget period with 38 projects. According to the DICA, those foreign and local businesses create 42,880 job opportunities for residents. Next, the COVID-19 surge and political changes led to a drastic fall in the FDI sector compared with the previous years. Myanmar attracted foreign direct investment of more than US$3.79 billion in the last financial year 2020-2021 from 48 enterprises.

Last FY2020-2021, the domestic investors pumped K1,171 billion into 17 projects permitted by the Myanmar Investment Commission and into 44 projects endorsed by the state and region investment committees, MIC stated. — GNLM

Sellers outnumber buyers in domestic gold market

THE domestic gold market sees more sellers than buyers, said U Myo Myint of the Yangon Region Gold Entrepreneurs Association (YGEA).

Although the daily transaction of 50 visses (a viss equals 1.6 kilograms) of gold is seen in the market, they all are solely performed by the resellers.

"Sellers outnumber the buyers in the market. As the gold price remains high, people cannot afford it to buy, so the number of resellers is growing in the market," U Myo Myint elaborated.

The prices of gold are on the upward trend, tracking the global gold prices and the local currency value against the US dollar, he added. At present, gold prices hit over $1,930 per ounce in the global market. The US dollar exchange rate stands at over K2,000. Meanwhile, the cost of pure gold touched a high of K2,039,000 per tical (0.578 ounce, or 0.016 kilogramme).

Only when Kyat strengthens against the US dollar in the local forex market and the global gold price slides can the domestic gold price fall, U Myo Myint continued.

The domestic gold price is highly correlated with the global gold price, so it remains an upward trend, the YGEA stated.

During the end of September 2021, a dollar value hit an all-time high of over K3,000 in the gold exchanges and consequently, the pure gold reached a record high of K2.22 million per tical in history.

Under the guidance of the Central Committee on Ensuring Smooth Flow of Trade and Goods, the Monitoring and Steering Committee on Gold and Currency Market was formed on 17 December 2021 as gold and currency market stability play a crucial role in trade facilitation.

The committee's objectives are to inspect and prosecute market manipulation, check if there is compliance with payment rules or not, and proceed against those unscrupulous traders. They intend to interfere with the free and fair operation of the market under the existing laws, by-laws and regulations in line with the official directives, illegal procurement of foreign currency, illicit trade and taking legal actions against price manipulators.

Furthermore, the officials concerned will crackdown on those involved in charging a percentage for money withdrawals at the banks as shadow money. — NN/GNLM

Restrict unlimited use of water sources in time

TODAY'S globe is under the control of climate change and lesser supplies of foods based on the utilization of water sources. Unsystematic utilization of water and climate change processes makes the water sources to be lessened.

Water is essential for the growing number of populations. But, excessive use of water volume not only in households but in development tasks such as construction and other services extract the water from the world. As such, the water sources of the world are gradually declining.

Global countries are scrambling in utilizing water sources, causing conflicts and tensions among them. Hence, they all need to solve such problems under systematic water management to ease the tensions and overcome challenges and disputes.

Among the various ways of utilizing water sources, the underground water tapping process is of importance for the people. Myanmar possesses 16 per cent of the water sources among the Southeast Asian countries and 12 per cent of water sources in Asia.

An increasing number of populations, booming urban areas and degradation of the environment make water requirements higher. Expansion of cultivable lands in rural areas and development of rural-based businesses extract a large volume of underground water year after year. Especially the unlimited tapping of underground water in the urban area is very dangerous for the people and the nation in the future.

It is because the emergence of vacant areas based on tapping of underground water will be a root cause of landslides in the urban area. According to the press release issued by the International Groundwater Resources Assessment Centre-IGRAC, Myanmar uses 68 per cent of underground water for consumption, nine per cent for the industrial sector and 23 per cent for agriculture annually.

The majority of some 7 million population of Yangon City uses only underground water or tube-well water. As such, the extreme utilization of underground water will be difficult for the settlement of the people in the long run.

Unlimited tapping of underground water may cause landslides, entering of seawater at the seaside areas, a decline of underground water level, collapse of buildings, and deforestation. Hence, people should not prioritize selfishness in using water sources, mainly underground water sources.

People need to use the water efficiently, avoiding water waste elsewhere. Authorities should effectively implement the rules and regulations related to the management of underground water utilization. If so, the country can stop the unlimited tapping of water sources in time.

COVID-19: Education risks becoming 'greatest divider'

NOW entering its third year, the COVID-19 pandemic has continued to hold back some 405 million school children worldwide from a full return to the classroom, according to a new report released on Wednesday by the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF).

And as 23 countries have yet to fully re-open schools, many children are at risk of just dropping out.

"When children are not able to interact with their teachers and their peers directly, their learning suffers," said UNICEF Executive Director Catherine Russell. "When they are not able to interact with their teachers and peers at all, their learning loss may become permanent. "This rising inequality in access to learning, means that education risks becoming the greatest divider, not the greatest equalizer. When the world fails to educate its children, we all suffer."

2 trillion hours, gone
The report entitled, Are children really learning?, features country-level education data on the impact that COVID-19 school closures are having on children along with an updated analysis of the state of learning before the pandemic.

The study points out that 147 million children missed more than half of their in-class instruction over the past two years – amounting to two trillion hours of lost in-person education, globally.

Africa case study

In addition to data on learning loss, the report highlights emerging evidence that many children did not return to school when their classrooms reopened, including in Liberia, West Africa, where 43 per cent of public-school students remained out of the classroom after schools reopened in December 2020.

And between March 2020 and July 2021, the number of children out of school in South Africa, tripled from 250,000 to 750,000. Around one in 10 Ugandan students did not report back to school in January 2022 after two years of school closures.

Meanwhile in Malawi, the dropout rate among girls in secondary education increased by 48 per cent, between 2020 and 2021, and in Kenya, a survey of 4,000 adolescents aged 10-19 years found that 16 per cent of girls and eight per cent of boys did not return when schools reopened.

"When the world fails to educate its children, we all suffer," said the senior UN official.

Vulnerable and marginalized

Out-of-school children are some of the most vulnerable and marginalized youth in society – least likely to read, write or do basic math.

Moreover, they are cut off from the school safety nets – putting them at even greater risk of exploitation and a lifetime of poverty and deprivation.

"Even before the pandemic, the most marginalized children were being left behind," reminded Ms. Russell.

"As the pandemic enters its third year, we can't afford to go back to 'normal'. We need a new normal," the UNICEF chief spelled out, "getting children into classrooms, assessing where they are in their learning, providing them with the intensive support they need to recover what they've missed, and ensuring that teachers have the training and learning resources they need."

"The stakes are too high to do anything less".

Learning slowdown

Although out-of-school children suffer the greatest loss, pre-pandemic data from 32 countries and territories highlighted an already desperately poor level of learning that has only been exacerbated by the COVID-triggered education crisis.

In the countries analyzed, the current pace of learning is so slow that it would take seven years for most schoolchildren to learn foundational reading skills that should have been grasped in two years, and 11 years to learn foundational numeracy skills.

Vietnam strives to resume int'l tourism amid COVID-19 pandemic

WITH proactive and continuous efforts, Vietnam is stepping up the resumption of international tourism while flexibly adapting to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Taking place here from Thursday to Sunday after two years of suspension, the Vietnam International Travel Mart 2022, the largest annual tourism trade fair in the Southeast Asian country, marked the reopening of the Vietnamese tourism sector in the new normal context.

On another positive note, the country welcomed roughly 91,000 international arrivals in the first quarter of this year, surging 89.1 per cent against the same period last year, said its General Statistics Office.

Promotion activities

Over the past few weeks, promotion activities have been accelerating across localities including the Vietnamese capital Hanoi, northern Quang Ninh province, and central Quang Nam province to welcome tourists back.

Several new products like marine tourism, cultural tourism and eco-tourism with unique features of localities have been launched as highlights for the upcoming summer travel season.

On 15 March, the country fully reopened its borders to foreign visitors after nearly two years of COVID-19 disruption. Accordingly, most travelling restrictions had been removed for international arrivals to Vietnam.

Visitors now only need to prove that they have been fully vaccinated or recovered from COVID-19, with a negative test result as per requirements by local health authorities. They are also required to have insurance coverage of at least 10,000 US dollars for possible COVID-19 treatment in Vietnam.

Also from 15 March, immigration procedures for foreigners have been restored like before the COVID-19 pandemic, meaning that citizens from a list of 80 countries and regions can now apply for an e-visa for a stay of up to 30 days.

The Vietnamese government reiterated its stance to treat foreign and domestic tourists as the same.

Vietnam had resumed the visa exemption policy for citizens from 13 countries including Japan, South Korea, and Russia, its key tourism markets, on the same day. Prior to this, all restrictions on the frequency of international flights were officially removed since 15 February.

The country hosted a record number of more than 18 million visitors in 2019, the last full year before the coronavirus outbreak, compared to just 157,000 foreign arrivals in 2021 due to border closures. It has set a target of receiving over 5 million foreign tourists in 2022, according to the Vietnam National Administration of Tourism (VNAT).

At a recent meeting on reopening the sector, Deputy Minister of the Vietnamese Ministry of Foreign Affairs Nguyen Minh Vu assessed that an assertive door-opening policy is giving Vietnam the advantage of being among "the first movers".

When many countries and regions have not yet opened, the choices of tourists cannot be as diverse as before the pandemic. The advantage will, therefore, belong to the destinations that open early, actively promote and refresh their tourism image to attract tourists' attention.

However, insiders have largely agreed that the reopening does not mean foreign tourists will immediately flock to Vietnam like before the pandemic.

"Opening at this time is to resume the market so that we can welcome international visitors between this September and March 2023, our annual peak season," VNAT general director Nguyen Trung Khanh told local media.

To the pre-pandemic level

Local experts view that it may take months or even years for the number of visitors to recover to the pre-pandemic level, citing their financial and health concerns when travelling. At this point in time, it is a big challenge to reach customers from several important markets due to certain traveling restrictions, Khanh noted, adding that Russia, as another key market, is also affected by the pandemic and the current Ukraine conflict.

Switzerland to lift all COVID-19 restrictions on April 1

THE Swiss government on Wednesday said that it has decided to lift all COVID-19 restrictions in the country on 1 April.

Starting 1 April, the requirement to wear masks in public transport and medical institutions, as well as the requirement of self-isolation for those who have tested positive for COVID-19, will be lifted, the government said in a statement.

“Due to the high level of immunization of the population, there has been no significant increase in the number of COVID-19 patients in intensive care in recent weeks, but the number of infections has risen again. The situation is unlikely to worsen in the months ahead. However, it is impossible to predict the development of the pandemic. SARS-CoV-2 is expected to become endemic rather than cease to exist. Therefore, new seasonal surges should be expected,” the statement read.

Switzerland will also establish a transition phase until spring 2023 with increased monitoring of COVID-19 infections, including testing, vaccination, and contact tracing.

The cantonal authorities of Switzerland will now be responsible for containing the spread of COVID-19, the government added.

A total of 3,468,289 COVID-19 cases have been reported in Switzerland since the start of the pandemic, and 13,534 people have died. Almost 6 million people, or 69.8 per cent of the country’s population, have been vaccinated. — ANI ■

SHANGHAI will launch a nucleic acid testing campaign in areas west of the Huangpu River starting Friday amid the second phase of the city’s closed-off management, an official told a press conference on Thursday.

This round of testing will involve 16 million people, and 12 districts will be put under closed-off management, said Ma Chunlei, secretary-general of the Shanghai municipal people’s government. The megacity with a population of over 24 million on Monday began enforcing temporary closed-off management in two phases to track possible infections and curb the spread of the virus.

Ma said the authorities were making efforts to improve the provision of food supplies as well as address issues with seeking medical help. Shanghai reported 355 confirmed locally transmitted COVID-19 cases and 5,298 asymptomatic carriers on Wednesday, said a statement on the website of the Shanghai Municipal Health Commission.—Xinhua ■

Laos calls for cooperation among ASEAN to curb COVID-19 pandemic

THE ASEAN countries should strengthen their cooperation in slowing the spread of COVID-19, Lao Minister of Information, Culture and Tourism, Suanesavanh Vignaket, said on Wednesday. “The COVID-19 pandemic is continuing to affect the region and the world and is having a long-term effect, not only on socio-economic development but also on people-to-people connectivity,” the Lao Minister said when virtually addressing the 27th ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community Council Meeting, adding that “the renewed outbreak comes at a time when we are also facing a sharp increase in the price of fuel and a cost of living crisis as inflation soars.” The Lao government has continued to roll out vaccinations across the country and aims to have vaccinated 80 per cent of the population by the end of 2022, the Minister told the meeting.

Suanesavanh thanked ASEAN member states, dialogue partners and international organizations for all the support and invaluable assistance extended to Laos in the fight against COVID-19.—Xinhua ■

South Africa’s Covid death toll tops 100,000

SOUTH Africa has registered a total of more than 100,000 Covid deaths, according to official figures released Wednesday, but actual fatalities are believed to be much higher.

Data released by the National Institute for Communicable Diseases showed a total of 100,020 fatalities had occurred since the start of the pandemic two years ago.

The institute reported 44 deaths on Wednesday, but only six were from the past two days, while the rest were discovered during an ongoing government audit. Covid-19 fatalities are estimated to be higher than officially reported, with researchers saying they could be triple the reported figures.

Data compiled by the South African Medical Research Council shows that there have been over 300,000 excess deaths from natural causes since the pandemic hit.

“Since 3 May 2020, there has been a cumulative total of 303,400 excess deaths from natural causes of persons all ages,” the council said in a report on Tuesday.

The excess deaths data is derived from an estimate of fatalities that might be expected to have occurred without a pandemic, according to the methodology employed by the government-funded but independent research group.

“Although more data are needed on the underlying causes of (natural) death, (the) observation is strongly supportive that a significant proportion of the current excess mortality being observed in South Africa is likely to be attributable to Covid-19,” it said in a report on its website.—AFP ■

IN BRIEF

German unemployment stable in March as war rattles economy

GERMAN unemployment stayed at five per cent in March, figures published Thursday showed, as the war in Ukraine darkened the outlook for Europe's largest economy.

The number out of work went down by 18,000 in March on a seasonally adjusted basis, although the overall joblessness rate remained unchanged from February, the BA federal labour agency said.

Russia's invasion of its neighbour, which has added to supply chain disruptions and sent prices for energy rocketing, has so far only had an "isolated" impact on the labour market, BA regions director Daniel Terzenbach said. But the risk that supplies of natural gas and oil from Russia could be cut off if the conflict were to escalate were "weighing on the economic outlook" for Germany, Terzenbach said.—AFP

UK growth slightly less than expected in 2021: data

BRITAIN'S economy rebounded slightly less than initially thought last year, official data showed Thursday, ahead of a far tougher 2022 on fallout from the Ukraine war and soaring inflation.

Gross domestic product jumped 7.4 per cent in 2021, down on an initial estimate of 7.5-per cent growth, the Office for National Statistics said in a statement.

The revision still marked Britain's strongest growth since the Second World War.

Better-than-expected growth in the fourth quarter of last year followed a slightly weaker-than-forecast third quarter, the ONS added.

"GDP grew a little stronger than we first thought in the fourth quarter, meaning it is now only 0.1 per cent below its pre-pandemic level," said Darren Morgan, director of economic statistics at the ONS.

Output expanded 1.3 per cent in the final three months, up from an estimate of 1.0 per cent growth.—AFP

Thailand sticks to pro-growth policies despite inflation worries

THAILAND'S central bank has decided to leave its interest rate unchanged to shore up the subdued economy despite the uprising inflation, which has recently recorded the steepest climb in more than 13 years on soaring food and energy prices.

The Bank of Thailand (BOT) announced Wednesday to keep the benchmark policy rate unchanged despite inflation spiralling above its target, vowing to continue to put emphasis on supporting economic recovery as the rising inflation will not persist.

The central bank expected Thailand's headline inflation to rise 4.9 per cent in 2022, above its target range of 1-3 per cent for the year. However, it projected the inflation pressure to ease in early 2023 with energy and food prices stabilizing.

The BOT monetary policy committee voted unanimously to maintain the policy rate at a record low of 0.5 per cent, which has been left unchanged since May 2020.

The decision was in line with market expectations, as most economists expect the Bank of Thailand to keep the rate steady throughout 2022 to support a nascent economic recovery.

The country's consumer price index, a major gauge of inflation, surged 5.28 per cent year-on-year in February, the fastest pace since September 2008 and up from 3.23 per cent in January. The index is widely expected to rise further in March.—Xinhua ■

Japan rules out withdrawal from joint Russia gas project

JAPAN has no plans to withdraw from a joint Russian oil and gas project, despite joining tough sanctions on Moscow over its Ukraine invasion, Prime Minister Fumio Kishida said Thursday.

Energy resource-poor Japan is attempting to balance its need for fossil fuels with toeing a hard line on Russia, and has faced questions over its continued involvement in the Sakhalin-2 project.

After Russia launched its war in Ukraine last month, oil giant Shell said it would sell its 27.5 per cent stake in Sakhalin-2 in Russia's far east.

But Kishida said the project was helping to provide "long-term, inexpensive and stable LNG supplies" to Japan.

Japan aims to reduce its dependence on Russian energy, but Sakhalin oil and gas projects, in which the Japanese government and companies hold stakes, are important for its energy security. PHOTO: AFP/FILE

"It is an extremely important project in terms of our energy security," he told a parliamentary session. "Our plan is not to withdraw."

Japan's Mitsui controls a 12.5 per cent stake in the project, while Mitsubishi owns 10 per cent. It is 50-per-cent controlled by Russian energy company Gazprom.

Despite the decision, Japan will "continue to make efforts to reduce our energy dependency on Russia" in line with G7 policy, Kishida said.

Tokyo has pressured Moscow over the invasion with a series of sanctions on Russian groups and individuals, including President Vladimir Putin.

Russia-Ukraine conflict poses new challenge to global food security, says FAO official

THE ongoing Russia-Ukraine conflict, which came at a time when economies worldwide are still grappling with the negative effects of COVID-19, poses a new challenge to global food security, an official with the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) has said.

"Many countries rely on supplies from Ukraine and Russia for their food import needs, including numerous least developed countries and low-income food-deficit countries," Boubaker Ben-Belhassen, director of FAO's trade and markets division, told Xinhua in a recent written interview.

Russia and Ukraine are major agricultural producers and exporters, he said, adding that Russia stood as the world's top exporter of nitrogen fertilizers, the second leading supplier of potassium fertilizers and the third largest exporter of phosphorous fertilizers in 2021.

"Disruptions to Ukrainian and Russian grain and oilseed production and exports and restrictions on Russia's exports can have significant impacts on global food security," noted Ben-Belhassen.—Xinhua ■

South Korea exports hit all-time high in March

SOUTH Korea's exports hit an all-time monthly high in March thanks to strong demand for semiconductors and petroleum products, Seoul's trade ministry said Friday.

The country is home to major technology firms including Samsung Electronics, the world's leading smartphone maker, whose chips are used in a wide range of devices.

South Korea's outbound shipments stood at US$63.48 billion for March 2022, up from $53.69 billion a year earlier. The figures are "the highest tally since 1956, when trade statistics started to be collected",

Pokemon bread sets off craze in S. Korea, fuelled by nostalgia

POKEMON bread has sparked a craze in South Korea on its return to shelves for the first time in some two decades, driven mainly by the childhood nostalgia of fans of the global hit animation series "Pocket Monster" but also winning new admirers.

About 4.7 million packs of the bread have sold in less than a month since it returned to stores in late February. It comes with stickers of characters from the beloved Japanese animation and video game series, which made its debut in South Korea in 1999. With stores quickly selling out, queues have formed and even celebrities have been scrambling to buy the cake-like bread. RM, the leader and member of famed K-pop boy band BTS, took to social media to say he had to go to eight convenience stores to finally get hold of some. The bread, which was first released in 1998 and was sold until around the early 2000s, returned to the market due to consumer demand, according to its manufacturer.—Kyodo ■

Japan's new car sales slip 3rd straight year as pandemic continues

NEW car sales in Japan declined for the third straight year in fiscal 2021, down 9.5 per cent from a year earlier, as production slowed on shortages of semiconductors and other components amid the coronavirus pandemic, industry bodies said Friday.

A total of 4,215,826 cars were sold in the year ended Thursday, according to the Japan Automobile Dealers Association and the Japan Light Motor Vehicle and Motorcycle Association. Domestic auto sales excluding mini vehicles slumped 8.2 per cent to 2,660,855 units, the second lowest since the survey began in fiscal 1968.

Toyota Motor Corp. sold 1,313,913 units, down

9.7 per cent. The pandemic's impact in Southeast Asia forced it to scramble for parts and temporarily reduce domestic production significantly.

Honda Motor Co. and Nissan Motor Co. marked declines of 3.4 per cent and 1.1 per cent, respectively. Mazda Motor Corp. reported a 15.4 per cent fall, with Subaru Corp. losing 14.2 per cent.

Sales of minivehicles, which have an engine displacement of up to 660 cc, tumbled 11.5 per cent to 1,554,971 units, the lowest in 24 years.

QUICK SUMMARY

Japan expands sanctions against N. Korea over missile development

The Japanese government on Friday expanded sanctions against North Korea by newly freezing the assets of four Russian organizations and nine individuals of the reclusive Asian country for their involvement in Pyongyang's nuclear and missile development programmes.

Japan's top government spokesman, Chief Cabinet Secretary Hirokazu Matsuno, said the measure, approved at a Cabinet meeting in the morning and to take effect the same day, is part of Japan's efforts to comprehensively resolve issues involving North Korea.

"Japan urges North Korea to take concrete actions toward resolving issues" including its nuclear and missile development programmes as well as the North's past abductions of Japanese nationals, Matsuno told a regular news conference.

Referring to the additional sanctions at a House of Councilors session, Prime Minister Fumio Kishida said, "We will continue to do everything to gather information and monitor the situation while ensuring the peace and security of our country."—Kyodo ■

Biden under fire over record US immigration

US Republicans accused President Joe Biden Wednesday of deliberately manufacturing an immigration crisis that rights campaigners say has seen thousands of migrants tortured and raped, as dramatic increases in already record-breaking entries are expected.

Crossings from Mexico have been surging in recent weeks, and two memos being circulated by the party leadership argue that Biden and Vice-President Kamala Harris had made the current border crisis "the worst in American history".

A group of Republican senators told reporters Biden's weakness on the border was to blame for thousands of migrants being victimized by unscrupulous traffickers on their perilous journeys north.—AFP ■

JICA's China office to stay open even after end of development aid

THE Japan International Cooperation Agency's office in China will remain open even after Tokyo's decades-old official development aid to the world's most populous country ends in March.

The Japanese government has determined that keeping the JICA office in Beijing open is necessary to grasp better China's new role as a major provider of economic assistance to developing countries, officials said.

Japan's official development assistance to China started in December 1979 and has contributed to an improvement in infrastructure and helping China rise to its current status as the world's second-largest economic power.—Kyodo ■

SECURITY forces were deployed across the Sri Lankan capital on Friday after protesters tried to storm the president's home in anger at the nation's worst economic crisis since independence.

The South Asian nation of 22 million people is facing widespread shortages of essential goods and sharp price rises, weighed down by enormous debt.

Police in Colombo said they arrested 45 people after Thursday night's unrest, in which one man was critically injured.

A curfew put in place overnight was lifted early Friday morning, but police and military presence was beefed up around the city, where the burnt-out wreckage of a bus was still blocking the road to President Gotabaya Rajapaksa's house.

On Thursday night, protesters lit tyres on fire to barricade a main road into the capital.

Hundreds of people, rallied by unidentified social media activists, marched on Rajapaksa's home demanding his resignation, setting two military buses and a police jeep ablaze and using bricks to attack officers.

Security forces fired into the crowd and used tear gas and water cannon to disperse the demonstrators. It was not immediately clear if they used live rounds or rubber bullets.

Rajapaksa was not at home during the melee, according to official sources, but top military officials went into a huddle to discuss the crisis.—AFP ■

Turkey seeks to shelve Khashoggi case

A Turkish prosecutor on Thursday asked an Istanbul court to halt the trial of 26 suspects in the murder of Saudi critic Jamal Khashoggi and hand the case over to Riyadh.

Turkey is seeking to mend ties with Saudi Arabia to bolster its struggling economy, four years after the gruesome 2018 killing of the dissident Saudi journalist inside Riyadh's consulate in Istanbul.

The Istanbul court is trying 26 Saudi officials in absentia over the macabre killing but the prosecutor said the trial should be stopped and the case transferred to Saudi Arabia, at the latter's request.

Reporters Without Borders (RSF) said the prosecutor's request was "terrible news". The press rights group urged the Turkish justice ministry to turn it down.

A Russian parliamentary commission held its first meeting on Thursday, announcing the establishment of four working groups to investigate US-controlled biological laboratories in Ukraine.

The commission heard information from the Russian Defence Ministry on the investigation into biological research by American specialists in Ukraine, the Russian State Duma or the lower house of the country's Federal Assembly said in a statement.

During Russia's special military operation, the dangerous biological activities of the United States on the territory of Ukraine were revealed, said Irina Yarovaya, co-chair of the commission and deputy chairperson of the State Duma.

"Dangerous both for Russia and for Ukraine itself. We are talking about secret activities controlled by the US Department of Defence, with signs of the development of biological weapons," she said.

The four working groups will conduct a detailed analysis of all documents and facts, including at the expert level, the senior lawmaker noted.

"Today the commission has instructed the working groups on defence, security and international law to start working on materials on the involvement of Hunter Biden in the project in Ukraine, as well as an invitation for explanations from him and Victoria Nuland," Yarovaya said.

FIFA president Gianni Infantino clarified at the 72nd FIFA Congress in Doha, Qatar on Thursday that FIFA has not proposed a biennial World Cup and it needs more time to discuss.

Speaking about the speculations on the biennial World Cup, Infantino said the world football governing body has not made a proposal to change the global calendar. "The last FIFA congress asked the FIFA administration with a vote, and 80% voted in favor to study the feasibility of the world cup every two years," said Infantino. "FIFA came to the conclusion that it is feasible and it would even be positive for a big part of the world. But there is also a big opposition to it due to the repercussions and impacts." FIFA is not in a hurry to make the final decision and Infantino believed it still needs some time to debate, discuss and convince, and FIFA is trying to find agreements and compromises with all parties involved. — Xinhua ■
