Myanmar categorically rejects and dissociates itself from adoption of EU-sponsored resolution against the country at Human Rights Council

MYANMAR observed that the adoption of the resolution sponsored by the European Union on 1 April 2022 during the 49th Session of the Human Rights Council in Geneva was unacceptable due to its non-adherence to the standard procedures of the Council as well as unfounded elements contained in the resolution.

Myanmar observed that the Human Rights Council had spent numerous hours on dialogues based on a politically motivated agenda against Myanmar, amidst the serious debates on efficiency measures of the Council due to the proliferation of Interactive Dialogues on human rights matters, including Myanmar. It is merely the duplication of work at the will of certain sponsors to politically exert pressure on Myanmar rather than the genuine will to pragmatically protect and promote human rights. The essence of genuine dialogue, which is the fundamental principle of the Human Rights Council, has already been destroyed since the representation of Myanmar has been intentionally and politically left out in the Council meetings.

Myanmar also observed that the consideration of the UPR report submitted by Myanmar was postponed to the 50th session of the Human Rights Council to be held in June 2022. It is contrary to the objectives of the UPR which encourage the full involvement of the country under review in a constructive and non-politicized manner and the principles to ensure universal coverage and equal treatment of all States and to avoid confrontation in consideration of human rights issues.

The Enhanced Interactive Dialogue on the report of the Secretary-General on Myanmar was taken place on 18 March 2022, which puts undue pressure on UN Country Teams across the world, including Myanmar, to politicize the profession of different UN agencies under the pretext of mainstreaming human rights with the approach "Call to Action". Myanmar does not see any necessary guarantee to ensure that "Call to Action" is operationalized in an independent manner while there is no indication of how the approach is being funded and whether necessary human resources are properly allocated. Myanmar therefore does not accept but rejects the unilateral mechanisms which were adopted without the consent of the country.

The Interactive Dialogue with the United Nations High Commission for Human Rights on Myanmar was convened on 21 March 2022. Though the High Commissioner acknowledges the violence committed by the terrorist groups such as CRPH, NUG and PDF, she understated the actual figures and even incited them to further unrest, implying that the terrorist acts by them were at the acceptable level of degree under the banner of "armed resistance groups". She further ignored the fact that the terrorist groups killed over 2,000 innocent civilians, including several dozens of children, women, Buddhist monks and nuns, as well as educational and healthcare staff. It is found out that the High Commissioner made sweeping allegations against Myanmar's security forces in connection with the incidents in Pale, Loikaw and Dimawhso townships. Myanmar has publicly informed about these incidents. While it is essential to fairly reflect the views of the country concerned, the failure of the High Commissioner to present such publicly available information questions her professionalism and integrity.

Again on the same day, another Interactive Dialogue with the Special Rapporteur on the situation of human rights in Myanmar was organized. The Special Rapporteur seems to attach considerable importance to the quantitative aspect because the figures he described on each occasion are significantly multiplied, doubling the figures of alleged deaths and displacement overnight. The figures he invented were not totally consistent even within the two reports to the same HRC Session. The Special Rapporteur further violates the Code of Conduct which requires him to give the concerned State the opportunity to respond to the allegations made against it and annex the State's written summary responses to their reports. The Special Rapporteur also misused the mandate and invented the so-called conference room paper entitled "Enabling Atrocities: UN Member States' Arms Transfers to the Myanmar Military". With the absence of different views which do not follow his narratives, assessments of the Special Rapporteur are obviously imbalanced and biased.

It is also disappointing to see the adoption of the resolution entitled "Situation of Human Rights in Myanmar" tabled by the European Union on 1 April 2022. The contents of the resolution clearly show the level of interference in the domestic affairs of a sovereign country with unfounded accusations without any verification. It, therefore, contradicts the basic principles of the Human Rights Council to ensure impartiality, objectivity and non-selectivity in consideration of human rights issues. While Myanmar maintains friendly relations with all countries in the world, it deplores the intrusive behaviours of certain countries against the principles enshrined in the Charter of the United Nations. Due to the unhelpful approach taken by the sponsors of the resolution and intruding mechanisms and elements contained therein, Myanmar categorically rejects the resolution and dissociates itself from its adoption.

Myanmar takes note with appreciation of the constructive statements made by friendly countries and expresses its gratitude to the countries which dissociated themselves from the adoption of the resolution against Myanmar.

Myanmar strongly objects to sweeping and unfounded accusations mentioned in the Report of the ILO Director-General and unilateral decision of the ILO Governing Body

THE Ministry of Labour observed that the 344th Session of the Governing Body of the International Labour Organization (ILO), which was held from 14 to 26 March 2022 in Geneva, adopted a decision to establish a Commission of Inquiry (COI), accusing Myanmar of non-observance of the Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize Convention, 1948 (No. 87) and the Forced Labour Convention, 1930 (No. 29). The decision was reached upon the report of the ILO Director-General on Developments in Myanmar, which includes highly politicized elements, unfounded allegations and matters which fall within the domestic jurisdiction of Myanmar.

In the draft report, it was mentioned that an individual was tortured to death. In fact, the afore-said person was detained for supporting and funding illegal activities. Some individuals were also mentioned as migration advocates though they were arrested for occupying arms and ammunition. Although some points in the draft report were amended later, the decision to establish a Commission of Inquiry based on such incorrect information remains unchanged.

Being a state party to the Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organize Convention (No 87), no one has been arrested or mistreated for exercising their rights peacefully or representing trade unions. There are 2,886 Basic Labour Organizations, 162 Township Labour Organizations, 26 Region or State Labour Organizations, 9 Labour Federations, 1 Labour Confederation, 1 Basic Employer Organization, 1 Township Employer Organization and 1 Employer Confederation, totalling over 3,000 Workers and Employers Organizations, which are registered under the Labour Organization Law 2011. These organizations are composed of more than 190,000 members of workers who have been enjoying fundamental labour rights not only by law but in practice as well. Therefore, it is irrelevant to generalize that Myanmar is not upholding its obligations under Convention 87 only because of taking legal actions against a handful number of individuals for their unlawful acts.

Moreover, in order to eradicate forced labour, the Government of Myanmar has been coordinating with the ILO Liaison Officer following the MoU between Myanmar and ILO in 2002. The Supplementary Understanding with ILO was signed for the establishment of the Complaint Mechanism in 2007 and was extended annually until 31 December 2018. The National Complaint Mechanism (NCM) on Eliminating Forced Labour of Myanmar was established on 3 February 2020 in accordance with the MoU on Decent Work Country Programme (2018-2021), which was signed between Myanmar and ILO on 21 September 2018. Accordingly, the complaints regarding the use of forced labour are being received and addressed by the National Complaint Mechanism. No complaint in connection with non-compliance with Convention No. 29 was filed as per the ILO Constitution.

While the Governing Body of the ILO has reached the decision to establish a Commission of Inquiry, Myanmar's participation at the Governing Body Sessions and the International Labour Conference has been denied since June 2021. Such a unilateral decision against Myanmar in the absence of the country concerned goes contrary to the ILO Constitution and due process.

In light of the above-mentioned reasons, Myanmar strongly objects to the sweeping and unfounded accusations mentioned in the report of the ILO Director-General on Myanmar and the decision of the ILO Governing Body to establish a Commission of Inquiry against Myanmar.

12 townships in Mandalay Region to receive K500 mln for rural road development

A total of K500 million will be spent on construction of 12 rural roads in 12 townships in Mandalay Region in the 2022-2023 Financial Year, according to Rural Development Department in Mandalay Region.

That rural road development project is implemented spending K500 million allocated by regional government, with a view to minimizing agricultural waste, facilitate the transportation throughout the year and support the supply chain to meet the deadline. The project includes 12-foot 10 rural roads, said U Kyi Saw, director of the Rural Development Department.

“The regional budget will cover that project. The department will call for bidding soon. The project is to enhance the economic benefits of the farmers. The lack of rural road infrastructure maximizes the agricultural waste in adverse weather. That rural road department project will help the rural community get access to the market in all weathers,” he elaborated.

Value-added tea leaf products from northern, eastern Shan State conveyed to external market

FRESH and dried tea leaves from the eastern and northern Shan State are being delivered to both domestic and foreign trade partners. The value-added dried tea bricks will be manufactured for exports.

Shwepheeo tea leaves are harvested before the pre-monsoon season (from the end of February to April). The remaining tea leaf varieties are also plucked every year. Shan State is the premier tea town in Myanmar. Kokang dried tea leaves from northern Shan State, and instant tea bricks are also popular among consumers. Green tea and black tea produced in Shan State have influenced the domestic market, and efforts are being undertaken for them to penetrate the European market.

Northern Shan State produces fresh and dried tea leaf, while the southern state primarily focuses on dried tea leaf production. The perennial tea plants from the eastern and northern Shan State have earned a reputation for dried tea leaf quality. The dried tea leaf from east Shan

State is yearly shipped to Thailand. There are over a hundred thousand tea leaf acres in Shan State, and the northern area is the leading producer.

“Myanmar’s tea leaves are commonly sent to China. Efforts to penetrate the European market are underway. The Ministry of Commerce conducts an awareness project to provide technical assistance for growing methods and harvest technology. The tea leaf bricks are produced with the fragrance of flowers. The more growers reach advanced technology, the more easily they can penetrate the external market. The tea leaf is exported to foreign markets through Pyay and Mandalay cities. The dried tea leaf is worth only US$1,000 per tonne, whereas the value-added products can fetch up to $5,000 per tonne. This being so, it can generate more revenues and increase export income”, said Saw Win Kyaw, director of Myanmar Trade Promotion Organization (Taunggyi, Shan State) under the Ministry of Commerce.

Myanmar exported $480,000 worth of over 226 tonnes of dried tea leaf via maritime trade and $1.49 million valued over 4,710 tonnes via cross-border posts between 1 October 2020 and 30 September 2021, totalling 1.908 million worth of 4,936.746 tonnes. Myanmar shipped approximately 4,500 tonnes of dried tea leaf in the 2018-2019 financial year, 2,800 tonnes in the 2019-2020 FY and over 4,900 in the 2020-2021 FY, respectively. The export growth was remarkably seen in the last FY.

Myanmar will boost its production technology to place its dried tea leaf products in the European market. The country exports them yearly to Australia, Denmark, Canada, China, India, the Netherlands, Norway, New Zealand, Malaysia and Singapore. At present, Germany is eyeing Shan State’s dried tea leaf. Imports slide to $7.6 bln as of 25 March, MoC reports Female workers are seen at one of the CMP workplaces.

THE value of Myanmar’s imports between 1 October and 25 March of the past mini-budget period 2021-2022 (Oct-Mar) slightly narrowed to US$7.6 billion, which reflects a drop of $24 million compared to the year-ago period, the Ministry of Commerce’s data indicated.

The import value stood at US$7.64 billion last FY 2020-2021.

The imports of capital goods declined last month, while the other import groups

(consumer, intermediate goods, and CMP businesses) increased.

Last month, capital goods, such as auto parts, vehicles, machines, steel, and aeroplane parts, were brought into the country. Their import value was estimated at $1.43 billion. The figure was over $1.3 billion lower than those values registered in the same period of the previous FY.

Meanwhile, Myanmar imported consumer products worth $1.65 billion, including pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, and palm oil. The imports of consumer products showed an increase of $73.8 million compared with the same period in the previous FY.

Intermediate goods make up the largest share of Myanmar’s imports, with the main imports of petroleum products and plastic raw materials. This year, imports of raw materials climbed up to $3.4 billion from $2.5 billion registered during the year-ago period.

During the same period, raw materials worth over $318.3 million were also imported for the Cut-Make-Pack (CMP) garment sector, increasing by $1.12 billion compared with last FY.

The top 10 import countries to Myanmar are China, Singapore, Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, India, Viet Nam, Japan, the Republic of Korea and the US, as per data from the Ministry of Commerce.— KK/GNLM

THE number of companies registered on the online registry system, MyCO, totalled 3,152 in the Q1 (January-March) this year; the statistics released by the Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA) indicated.

The registration and re-registration of companies on the MyCO website commenced on 1 August 2018 under the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

The figures of registered companies stood at 8,011 in 2021, 15,080 in 2020, 17,380 in 2019 and 8,506 in 2018 as per statistics of the DICA.

In addition, all registered companies need to file annual returns (AR) on the MyCO registry system within two months of incorporation and at least once every year (not later than one month after the anniversary of the incorporation) under Section 97 of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

Under Section 266 (A) of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017, public companies must simultaneously submit annual returns and financial statements (G-5).

All overseas corporations must submit ARs in the prescribed format on MyCO within 28 days of the financial year ending under Section 53 (A-1) of the Myanmar Companies Law 2017.

As per DICA’s report, about 16,000 companies have been suspended so far for failing to submit AR forms within the due date.

Newly established companies are required to submit ARs within two months of incorporation or face a fine of K100,000 for filing late returns.

The DICA has notified that any company which fails to submit its AR within 13 months will be notified of its suspension (I-9A). If it fails to submit the AR within 28 days of receiving the notice, the system will show the company’s status as suspended. Companies can restore their status only after shelling out a fine of K50,000 for the AR fee, K100,000 for restoration of the company on the register, and K100,000 for late filing of documents. According to the DICA notice, if a company fails to restore its status within six months of suspension, the registrar will strike its name off the register.— NN/GNLM

Efficiently use summer holidays for children

NOW is a summer holiday period for both the students and young children in Myanmar. Families and schools allow children to take the summer vacation as the season is hot and dry for hardship to do something for the children.

Schools in various forms, such as government schools at different levels and private schools as well as monastic schools, allow the summer vacation for students and children. So, some children spend their time with happy moves such as playing events, games, and other habitual activities.

Indeed, although the summer is not adequate to hardly do something, everybody should spend their spare time valuably. They should manage their children to do light learning and practice without pressure. The moves of children should not be useless.

Their efforts and keenness should be transformed into the proper practices of initiatives to be able to contribute to their life.

Generally, local authorities and leaders of households need to arrange training courses for children during the summer holidays. Such a kind of training course must give at least one thing of knowledge or technique to the children. These courses must uplift the characteristics of children.

As such, the summer courses must enhance the moral ethic of children for their life, and some vocational courses should help improve their morality as part of efforts to bring the white soul into society. Actually, these investments cannot harvest the fruits immediately. When the children grow up, they themselves will enjoy the fruits of their correct activities in the summer holidays.

These summer courses will not cost too much for the children. But, these courses would have brought invaluable results to society. These courses will be a drive to nurture the children in their childhood when the children do not have a rooted attachment to the isms. Their souls are whitish. Their hearts should be shaped for the children to have a concept of benevolence for society throughout their life.

Their souls are whitish. Their hearts should be shaped for the children to have a concept of benevolence for society throughout their life.

So, society authorities and householders should not miss the valuable chance to shape the basic life of children during the summer holidays. But, they all need to take care of their arrangements so as not to burden the children with difficult exercises. Discarding the ways for tension and pressures of children, these training courses should be attractive to them for seeking new experiences.

Study finds new type of UV light makes indoor air as safe as outdoors

Many infectious diseases, including COVID-19, are transmitted by airborne pathogens. There is a need for effective environmental control measures which, ideally, are not reliant on human behaviour.

ACCORDING to a new study led by Columbia University, a new type of ultraviolet light is safe for people. It took less than five minutes to reduce the level of indoor airborne microbes by more than 98 per cent.

The study was published in the journal, 'Scientific Reports'. Disinfecting indoor air with far-UVC light is a new approach to safely and efficiently destroy airborne viruses in occupied spaces.

The study has suggested that far-UVC light from lamps installed in the ceiling could be a highly effective passive technology for reducing communicable transmission of airborne-mediated diseases and lowering the risk of the next pandemic.

Far-UVC rapidly reduces the number of active microbes

"Far-UVC rapidly reduces the number of active microbes in the indoor air to almost zero, making indoor air essentially as safe as outdoor air," said David Brenner, PhD, director of the Center for Radiological Research at Columbia University Vagelos College of Physicians and Surgeons and co-author of the study.

"Using this technology in locations where people gather together indoors could prevent the next potential pandemic," he added.

"Far-UVC light is simple to install, it's inexpensive, it doesn't need people to change their behaviour, and above all, it's a safe way to prevent the transmission of any virus, including the COVID virus and its variants, as well as influenza and also any potential future pandemic viruses," he concluded.

Scientists have known for decades that a type of ultraviolet light known as UVC light rapidly kills microbes, including bacteria and viruses. But conventional germicidal UVC light cannot be used directly to destroy airborne viruses in occupied indoor spaces because it is a potential health hazard to the skin and eyes.

About a decade ago, Columbia University scientists proposed that a different type of UVC light, known as far-UVC light, would be just as efficient at destroying bacteria and viruses but without the safety concerns of conventional germicidal UVC.

Far-UVC light is safe for people because it has a shorter wavelength than conventional germicidal UVC, so it can't penetrate into living human skin cells or eye cells. But it is equally efficient at killing bacteria and viruses, which are much smaller than human cells.

Far-UVC is both efficient at destroying airborne bacteria and viruses

In the past decade, many studies around the world have shown that far-UVC is both efficient at destroying airborne bacteria and viruses and safe for use around people. But until now these studies had only been conducted in small experimental chambers, not in full-sized rooms mimicking real-world conditions.

In the current study, scientists at the University of St. Andrews, University of Dundee, University of Leeds, and Columbia University tested the efficacy of far-UVC light in a large room-sized chamber with the same ventilation rate as a typical home or office (about three air changes per hour).

During the experiment, a sprayer continuously emitted an aerosol mist of S. aureus bacteria into the room. (This microbe was chosen because it is slightly less sensitive to far-UVC light than coronaviruses, providing the researchers with an appropriately conservative model.) When the concentration of microbes in the room stabilized, the researchers turned on commercially available overhead far-UVC lamps.

At an intensity based on the current regulatory limit on far-UVC light exposure, set by the American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists, the far-UVC lamps inactivated more than 98 per cent of the airborne microbes in just five minutes. The low level of viable microbes was maintained over time, even though microbes continued to be sprayed into the room.

To reducing indoor virus levels

The efficacy of different approaches to reducing indoor virus levels is usually measured in terms of equivalent air changes per hour. In this study, far-UVC lamps produced the equivalent of 184 equivalent air exchanges per hour. This surpasses any other approach to disinfecting occupied indoor spaces, where five to 20 equivalent air changes per hour is the best that can be achieved practically.

"Our trials produced spectacular results, far exceeding what is possible with ventilation alone," said Kenneth Wood, PhD, lecturer in the School of Physics and Astronomy at the University of St. Andrews and senior author of the study.

"In terms of preventing airborne disease transmission, far-UVC lights could make indoor places as safe as being outside on the golf course on a breezy day at St. Andrews," he added.

Shanghai parents fear separation from kids after positive Covid test

NEARLY all of Shanghai's 25 million residents were under stay-at-home orders on Saturday, as parents raised fears of being separated from their children in the event of a positive Covid-19 test.

The city, which is the epicentre of China's most severe Covid outbreak since the first months of the pandemic, has faced weeks of phased lockdowns.

Authorities had vowed not to shut down the whole city, China's finance hub, but have conceded to rare failures in their attempts to control the outbreak.

On Saturday, Shanghai had over 6,300 local cases — more than two-thirds of the nationwide caseload, which is relatively low by global standards but troubling to a country that recorded double-digit daily cases for much of the last two years.

Over 14 million residents were tested on Friday, state media reported.

But the testing regime has seeded anxiety among parents about being separated from their children.

"My daughter is not yet four-months-old but if she tests positive then she'll be quarantined by herself," a resident in the populous Puxi area, west of the Huangpu river, told AFP.

"This is totally impossible to understand. No matter the circumstances, a newborn should never be separated from their parents," the 33-year-old, who gave his surname as Law, said.

"timely support to juveniles"

Shanghai will offer "timely support to juveniles" left unattended due to reasons such as their parents being infected with Covid, Zeng Qun, deputy head of the Shanghai Civil Affairs Bureau, said according to state media outlet Xinhua.

Those left at home will be allotted a "temporary guardian" or transferred to institutions "for juvenile protection for special care", the report said. Anger is rising among Shanghai residents over lockdowns that were initially billed for four days to mass-test the city, but now appear likely to drag into late next week or longer.

An initial four-day shutdown of Pudong, the eastern half of the financial hub, was meant to lapse on Friday.

But most of its residents are still confined, as complex quarantine rules mean any block with a virus case will have to be locked down for up to two weeks.

Residents in the city's western half — Puxi — were ordered to stay home from Friday, meaning almost all of Shanghai's population is currently quarantined.

"I'm worried both parts of the city will end up remaining closed for a while," a Puxi resident surnamed Wang told AFP. Fear is rising in Shanghai, with residents complaining of a lack of fresh food while the city's health resources are stretched.

There are over 1,500 people in a city exhibition hall that has been converted into a quarantine centre. An unverified audio clip circulating on social media Saturday purportedly showed a health official telling a resident that state quarantines were full.

G-20 finance chiefs will not issue statement after 20 April meeting

FINANCE chiefs from the Group of 20 economies have decided not to issue a joint statement after their 20 April meeting amid conflicts over Russia's participation in the event following its invasion of Ukraine, sources familiar with the matter said Monday.

The G-20 finance ministers and central bank governors are instead considering having Indonesia, this year's rotating chair of the group, release the results of discussions at the meeting in Washington, the sources said.

In response to Moscow's aggression, US President Joe Biden has said he believes Russia should be removed from the G-20. Some other members also aired concerns over the country's participation in the framework.

It is expected that Indonesia will not bar Russia from the meeting, and the country may attend virtually. But members opposed to Russia's participation might decide to forego the gathering. Japan's Finance Minister Shunichi Suzuki and Bank of Japan Governor Haruhiko Kuroda are expected to attend the meeting. As for the globally surging energy prices and food costs exacerbated by the ongoing invasion of Ukraine, a statement is expected to be issued at a meeting related to the International Monetary Fund to be held after the G-20 gathering.

The G-20 groups Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Britain, Canada, China, France, Germany, India, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea, Turkey, the United States and the European Union.

The G-20 was formed in 1999 to discuss policies to achieve international financial stability after the Asian currency crisis that started with the collapse of the Thai baht. After a global financial crisis sparked by the failure of US securities firm Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc in 2008, leaders of the G-20 member nations began to hold summits. On 18 February, about a week before Russia started its attack on Ukraine, the G-20 financial leaders said they will "continue to monitor major global risks, including from geopolitical tensions that are arising, and macroeconomic and financial vulnerabilities", without directly mentioning the Ukraine crisis. — Kyodo ■

India's HDFC Bank to absorb parent, making financial behemoth

INDIA'S largest private bank will merge with its largest mortgage lender to form a $237 billion financial giant, both companies said Monday, as low interest rates send demand for home loans soaring.

HDFC Bank will absorb its parent company, the Housing Development Finance Corporation (HDFC), in what will be one of the country's biggest-ever merger deals.

The twin firms together manage assets worth 25.61 trillion rupees ($339 billion) and had a combined balance sheet of 17.87 trillion rupees at the end of last year.

"As the son grows older, he acquires his father's business. That's all (that is) happening here," HDFC chairman Deepak Parekh told a media briefing.

He said the merger would help low- and middle-income homebuyers outside India's cities access "affordable" housing loans. India is enjoying a post-pandemic economic rebound and is growing faster than any other major economy.

Sustained low interest rates have led to a boom in home-loan demand among the country's 1.4 billion people.

Shareholders will receive 42 shares of HDFC Bank for every 25 shares held in HDFC following the merger, which is pending shareholder and regulatory approval.

HDFC Bank is currently India's largest private bank, with 68 million customers and 6,342 branches.

Shares in HDFC and its namesake banking subsidiary jumped 16.5 and 12.5 per cent respectively on the Bombay exchange after the merger announcement.—

Tokyo stock market revamped in hope of attracting foreign investors

A ceremony is held at the Tokyo Stock Exchange to mark the reorganization of the market into three trading segments on 4 April 2022, a major reform aimed at imposing stricter listing standards and attracting more foreign investment. PHOTO: KYODO

THE Tokyo stock market was reorganized Monday into three trading segments in a major reform aimed at imposing stricter listing standards and attracting more foreign investment.

The Prime, Standard and Growth markets replace the four sections formerly on the Tokyo bourse, as the operator has tried to create a clearer concept for each segment and revitalize a market that has fallen far behind its US peers in terms of capitalization.

By tightening standards on trading liquidity and corporate governance, Tokyo Stock Exchange Inc. hopes the top-tier

Prime Market will lure more foreign investors, who made up about 70 per cent of the trading value on the former First Section.

The reorganization is the largest change to the core structure of the Tokyo bourse since 1961 when the First Section was founded upon the creation of the Second Section amid a growing number of companies during Japan's period of rapid economic growth.

The new top-tier section consists of 1,839 of 3,771 listed on the bourse, including global names such as Toyota Motor Corp. and Sony Group Corp. The Standard Market for midsize firms and the Growth Market for up-and-comers consist of 1,466 and 466 firms, respectively.

The bourse operator requires companies on the Prime segment to have floating shares worth at least 10 billion yen ($81.6 million) that account for 35 per cent or more of its outstanding shares.

The operator also calls on companies to improve corporate governance, including having outside directors make up one-third of board members and enhancing transparency by offering information to investors in English.

But investors and market observers see that the overhaul may create little change as over 80 per cent of the roughly 2,100 issues on the First Section will slide over to the Prime segment.

About 300 firms did not meet the requirements to list on the top category but still earned a spot after submitting beforehand business plans on how to meet the criteria.

The operator launched discussions in 2018 about possibly reorganizing its market structure as it was difficult to differentiate the JASDAQ and Mothers sections, which both included up-and-coming companies. — Kyodo ■

Turkey's annual inflation hits record high

TURKEY'S annual inflation hit a new record high at 61.14 per cent in March, featuring rising energy and food prices, the Turkish Statistical Institute announced on Monday.

The country's consumer prices rose by 5.46 per cent month on month in March, according to the data released by the institute.

The highest annual price increase was in transport with 99.12 per cent, followed by foods and non-alcoholic beverages with 70.33 per cent, and furnishings and household equipment with 69.26 per cent, respectively.

Meanwhile, the domestic producer price index increased by 9.19 per cent on a monthly basis, with an annual rise of 114.97 per cent in March.

Turkey has been struggling with elevated inflation, which has put pressure on its population with rising living costs.

Economists predict that the country is likely to live with high inflation throughout 2022. The conflict between Russia and Ukraine has also prompted inflation over increasing energy prices.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan announced in December last year a record 50-per cent rise in the minimum wage to help offset surging living costs amid high inflation and a currency slump. The government also reduced the value-added tax on basic food products and basic necessities. Turkey's central bank has kept the benchmark interest rate unchanged since January, halting an easing cycle that sparked a currency slump in the second half of 2021. — Xinhua ■

Markets mostly up on US jobs data but rate worries linger

ASIAN markets mostly rose Monday as another strong jobs report provided some reassurance that the recovery in the US economy remained on track, though it also solidified expectations for more aggressive Federal Reserve interest rate hikes.

The gains were helped by another recent drop in oil prices after the 31-nation International Energy Agency agreed to tap its vast reserves to offset the removal of Russian exports, while the start of a ceasefire in Yemen eased concerns over supplies from the region.

Officials said Friday that the world's top economy added 431,000 positions in March while the unemployment rate fell to just slightly above pre-pandemic levels. The figures showed that while inflation has surged to a 40-year high and the Ukraine war has fanned uncertainty, the recovery continues.

The economy's resilience will be taken as further evidence that it could withstand a sharper rise in interest rates to bring prices under control, with many observers now predicting a half-point hike in May.

However, expectations that rates will continue to go up have seen Treasury yields surge, with commentators saying there were warning signs that growth will slow as the year progresses. "It would not be surprising to see yields rise further from here and it is very hard to know where they will land," An-

German exports rise but Ukraine clouds gather

GERMAN exports bounded higher in February, the official statistics agency said Monday, cautioning that the Ukraine conflict and sanctions against Russia were likely to cloud the picture in the months ahead.

Exports rose by a higher-than-expected 6.4 per cent on the previous month to reach a value of 124.7 billion euros ($137.5 billion), Destatis said, powered by strong demand from European Union countries.

Analysts surveyed by FactSet had predicted a two-per cent increase.

Imports jumped 4.5 per cent month-on-month, totalling 113.1 billion euros.

But trade with Russia was "markedly down", Destatis said, with exports falling by 6.3 per cent and imports by 7.3 per cent, revealing the first impact of sweeping Western sanctions imposed on Russia after its February 24 invasion of Ukraine.

"It is expected that, as of reference month March, foreign trade figures will show in detail in how far the sanctions, further measures to restrict exports and unsanctioned behaviour of market participants will further impact German trade with the Russian Federation," said Destatis.

The German economy, Europe's biggest, is bracing for a downturn as a result of the Ukraine war, which has added further strain to global supply chains and sent energy prices surging higher.

German auto giants Volkswagen, BMW and Mercedes-Benz have already been forced to curtail production at some plants in the wait for key car parts from Ukrainian factories. — AFP ■

Chinese battery giant continues dominating global EV battery market

CHINESE battery maker Contemporary Amperex Technology Co, Ltd (CATL) continued to dominate the global electric vehicle (EV) battery market with its market share expanding in early 2022, data from market research firm SNE Research showed.

In the first two months of the year, CATL provided 18.4 GWh of total EV battery installation worldwide, representing a 34.4 per cent market share, said SNE

Research.

BYD, a leading Chinese new energy vehicle manufacturer and also an EV battery maker, beat out Japan's Panasonic for third place with a market share of 11.9 per cent during the period, the data showed.

The total amount of battery energy for EVs reached 53.5 GWh globally in the first two months of 2022, more than double the figure from the same period last year, SNE Research said. — Xinhua ■

Japanese classical musicians win Grammy awards

TWO Japanese classical musicians, Mihoko Fujimura and Eru Matsumoto, were among those who received Grammy awards, announced Sunday in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Fujimura, a mezzo-soprano, was part of the chorale group that won “Best Choral Performance” at the 64th Grammy Awards for its rendition of Gustav Mahler’s Symphony No 8, conducted by Gustavo Dudamel.

Calling the award “prestigious”, Fujimura said that she was “extremely happy” to have received it as a soloist who was part of the chorale group.

Matsumoto, a cellist, was among the group that won “Best Classical Solo Vocal Album” for “Mythologies.”

Meanwhile, worldwide fans of South Korean boyband BTS were disappointed for the second consecutive year after it lost the “Best Pop Duo/Group Performance” despite the popularity of its catchy tune “Butter.”

The star-studded event, which also bills itself as “music’s biggest night,” was also marked by Ukraine’s President Volodymyr Zelenskyy’s appearance in a video message to plead for more support as Russia continues its invasion of his country.

“What is more opposite to music? The silence of ruined cities and killed people,” Zelenskyy said. “Our musicians wear body armor instead of tuxedos.”

“Tell the truth about the war on your social networks, on TV, support us in any way you can. Any, but not silence. And then peace will come,” Zelenskyy added.

Iran says will only return to Vienna to finalize nuclear deal

IRAN will only return to Vienna to finalize an agreement to revive its landmark 2015 nuclear deal with world powers, foreign ministry spokesman Saeed Khatibzadeh said Monday.

“We will not be going to Vienna for new negotiations but to finalize the nuclear agreement,” Khatibzadeh told reporters in Tehran.

However, Iran said there were still outstanding issues that it was waiting on Washington to settle.

“At the moment, we do not yet have a definitive answer from Washington,” Khatibzadeh said.

“If Washington answers the outstanding questions, we can go to Vienna as soon as possible.”

Tehran has been engaged in negotiations to revive the deal, known formally as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), with Britain, China, France, Germany and Russia directly, and the United States indirectly.

Iranian and US delegations in Vienna do not communicate directly, but messages are passed through other participants and the European Union, the talks’ coordinator.

Nearly a year of negotiations have brought the parties close to renewing the 2015 accord.

But the talks were halted last month, after Russia demanded guarantees that Western sanctions imposed following its invasion of Ukraine would not damage its trade with Iran.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov later said Moscow had received the necessary guarantees from Washington on trade with Iran.

Among the key sticking points is Tehran’s demand to remove from the US terror list the Revolutionary Guards, the ideological arm of Iran’s military.

Washington recently confirmed that sanctions on the Guards would stay.

“Today, in the final phase, the United States seeks to deprive Iran of the economic benefits of the agreement,” Khatibzadeh said.

The JCPOA gave Iran sanctions relief in exchange for curbs on its nuclear programme to guarantee that Tehran could not develop or acquire a nuclear weapon — something it has always denied wanting to do.

But the US unilateral withdrawal from the accord in 2018 under then-president Donald Trump and the reimposition of biting economic sanctions prompted Iran to begin rolling back its own commitments.

The Vienna talks aim to return the US to the nuclear deal, including through the lifting of sanctions on Iran, and to ensure Tehran’s full compliance with its commitments.— AFP ■

Sri Lanka leader offers to share power as protests escalate

SRI Lanka’s embattled president offered to share power with the opposition on Monday as protests demanding his resignation grew over the worsening shortages of food, fuel and medicines.

President Gotabaya Rajapaksa’s invitation to legislators came as heavily armed security forces looked to quell more demonstrations over what the government itself has acknowledged as the worst shortages of essentials since independence from Britain in 1948. “The president invites all political parties in parliament to accept cabinet posts and join the effort to seek solutions to the national crisis,” Rajapaksa’s office said in a statement. It stressed that solutions to the deepening crisis should be found “within a democratic framework”, as thousands joined spontaneous demonstrations in cities, towns and villages.

The invitation came after 26 cabinet members — every minister except Rajapaksa and his elder brother Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa — submitted letters of resignation at a late-night meeting on Sunday.

The country’s central bank governor Ajith Cabraal — who has long opposed an International Monetary Fund bailout for the country — also stepped down on Monday. The departures cleared the way for the country’s ruling political clan to seek to shore up its weakening position.— AFP ■

Jon Batiste crowned Grammys king with five wins including best album

INDUSTRY watchers had tipped pop superstars as the likely big winners at Sunday’s Grammys — but jazzman Jon Batiste instead was crowned king, taking home five awards including the prestigious Album of the Year prize.

At the star-studded gala, held for the first time in Las Vegas, Silk Sonic — the 70s revival project of Bruno Mars and Anderson .Paak — won all four of their potential prizes, including both Record and Song of the Year for their single “Leave The Door Open”.

Olivia Rodrigo didn’t win as many awards as predicted — but the Filipino-American pop phenom did scoop the coveted prize for Best New Artist, and two trophies in the pop category. That meant the winners of all four top Grammys were people of colour — a milestone for the Recording Academy, which for years has faced criticism that it disproportionately honoured white men.

day,” Batiste, born into a prominent New Orleans musical dynasty, told the audience as he accepted the night’s final prize. “It’s more than entertainment for me — it’s a spiritual practice.” The night was heavy on performances but also held a number of somber moments — most notably when Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy delivered a pre-taped plea for support. Zelenskyy’s message led into a performance by John Legend of the song “Free”, with the help of Ukrainian singer Mika Newton, musician Siuzanna Iglidan and poet Lyuba Yakimchuk.— AFP ■

More Ukrainians move west as Russia turns focus to Donbas

HUNDREDS wait for a train to take them west out of the path of the Russian advance at the station in Kramatorsk, the de facto capital of Ukrainian-controlled territory in Donbas.

“It’s been like this since the end of last week. Almost 2,000 people a day are boarding trains west for Lviv or elsewhere,” says Nasir, a humanitarian volunteer helping with the operation.

“It used to be two trains a day. Now it’s four,” he adds.

“The situation is bad. Lots of people have already left. The men are staying, our families are leaving,” says Andriy, whose wife and two children are taking shelter from the rain under the awning of a fast-food hut with their bags at their feet.

Sofia, his teenage daughter standing around with three friends also making their way west, admits she is “a bit sad” to be leaving.

“I’m sending my children to the west like everyone else, to my brother-in-law’s village” away from the frontline, says Andriy, holding on to his youngest child’s hand.

Since Russia announced its intention to concentrate its efforts on the “liberation” of Donbas, the traditional mining region in the east of Ukraine, residents have lived in fear of a major military offensive.

Authorities in Kyiv say they expect the situation to get worse as Russian troops seek to encircle Ukrainian forces arranged since 2014 along the frontline between Donetsk to the south and Lugansk in the east, the capitals of the two pro-Russian, breakaway “republics” of the same name. — AFP ■

Besieged Ukrainian city Mariupol ‘90 per cent’ destroyed: mayor

THE Ukrainian port city of Mariupol in the south-east of the country has been “90 per cent” destroyed after being besieged by Russian forces, its mayor Vadym Boichenko said Monday.

“The sad news is that 90 per cent of the infrastructure in the city is destroyed and 40 per cent is unrecoverable,” Boichenko told a press conference.

Around 130,000 people remained trapped in the city, which continues to be pounded by Russian bombardments, he said.

Approximately half a million people lived in the city on the coast of the Sea of Azov before the outbreak of the war.

“The Russian army is brutally destroying Mariupol,” Boichenko said.

“The bombings are incen-

sant,” the mayor said, with the notable use of “multiple rocket launchers”.

According to Boichenko, the majority of the attacks on the city were coming “from the sea”, where “Russian ships” were stationed.

“We are planning to evacuate the remaining residents, but we cannot do it today,” he said.

QUICK SUMMARY

HERE are the latest developments in the war in Ukraine:

Calls for war crimes trial

The discovery of bodies scattered on the streets of the Ukrainian town of Bucha after the withdrawal of Russian forces sparks global outrage.

US President Joe Biden calls for a war crimes trial and more sanctions on Russia.

The UN’s human rights chief Michelle Bachelet also says the images of people in civilian clothing, some of whom appear to have been bound by their hands and feet before being shot, suggests “possible war crimes”, as does German Chancellor Olaf Scholz and French President Emmanuel Macron.

On a visit to the town, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky labels the killings “genocide”, a term echoed by the prime minister of Poland.

Hundreds of bodies

AFP saw at least 20 bodies strewn along a single street in Bucha.

Ukrainian prosecutor general Iryna Venediktova says 410 civilian bodies were recovered from areas around Kyiv recently retaken from Russian forces.

Bucha’s mayor Anatoly Fedoruk says 280 bodies were buried in mass graves during the fighting.

Russian denial

The Kremlin denies Russian forces killed civilians, claiming that the images of dead bodies in Bucha are “fakes” produced by “Ukrainian radicals”.

“We categorically reject all allegations,” Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov says.

Moscow has called for a special UN Security Council meeting to discuss the situation.

More EU sanctions

The EU’s foreign policy chief Josep Borrell says the bloc is urgently discussing a new round of sanctions on Russia over the “atrocities” reported in Bucha and other Ukrainian towns that were occupied by Russian forces.

“We stand in full solidarity with Ukraine and the Ukrainian people in these sombre hours for the whole world,” he says.

Russia rejects accusations of Ukraine Bucha killings

THE Kremlin on Monday rejected accusations that Russian forces were responsible for killing civilians near Kyiv and suggested images of corpses were “fakes”.

“We categorically reject all allegations,” Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told journalists.

Peskov said that Russian “experts at the ministry of defence have identified signs of video fakes and various fakes”.

“We would demand that many international leaders do not rush to sweeping accusations and at least listen to our arguments,” he said.

International journalists over the weekend found corpses in civilian clothes, some with their hands bound, in the town of Bucha outside Ukraine’s capital after Kyiv’s forces retook it from Russia’s army.

Ukraine and Western leaders have erupted in outrage over the deaths in Bucha, a small town northwest of Kyiv.

Russia’s foreign ministry has called for a special UN Security Council meeting Monday to address what it said was a “heinous provocation” to blame Russian forces. — AFP ■

NETHERLANDS coach Louis van Gaal has received messages of support from his former clubs Manchester United, Barcelona and Bayern Munich after revealing he has prostate cancer. Van Gaal, 70, said on Sunday he had been receiving treatment since being diagnosed in 2020, but still plans to lead his team at the World Cup in Qatar in seven months' time. United, where he was in charge in 2014-2016, were among those wishing the Dutchman a speedy recovery.

"Everybody at Manchester United is fully behind our former manager, Louis van Gaal, in his battle against cancer. Sending you strength and courage, Louis," the English giants tweeted.

Barcelona, where he was twice manager and twice won La Liga, said on Twitter: "Our thoughts and prayers go out to former Barca manager Louis van Gaal... Stay strong, Louis, and get well soon." —AFP ■

Benfica target another European scalp against Liverpool

BENFICA face a gargantuan task in the Champions League quarter-finals on Tuesday but after already knocking out Barcelona and Ajax, there is belief they can spring another surprise against Liverpool.

Many circled Benfica as the kindest opponent available when the draw was made in Nyon last month, with this the furthest the Portuguese club have gone in the Champions League in six years.

The last time Benfica made the semis, they went on to reach the final, in 1990, when a team coached by Sven-Goran Eriksson lost 1-0 to AC Milan and missed out on lifting their third European Cup.

That was the last time Benfica really belonged with Europe's elite and it would be the shock of the round if they were to upset Liverpool, who, along with Manchester City, are surely this year's tournament favourites.

Benfica's impressive run in the Champions League has belied a tumultuous season domestically for the club, who parted ways with Jorge Jesus as coach in December following a 3-0 defeat by Porto and just seven wins out from their first 15 matches. —AFP ■
